Service-Learning Practicum Options
Spring 2014

What is a Service-Learning Practicum?
The SLR Practicum experience provides the opportunity to participate in service-learning for academic credits. Students may earn college credits through the fulfillment of learning objectives that are monitored by the College’s Service-Learning Coordinator. This academic program provides an opportunity to apply classroom theory to real world situations and community needs. Placements are unpaid partnerships with non-profit organizations and pre-screened by the Service-Learning Program.

Getting Started
Chat with the Service-Learning Coordinator to discuss your interests and availability. The following details outline the Service-Learning Practicum courses that are available this semester. In each course, students will learn about service-learning models, community engagement and citizenship, reflection skills, community awareness and partnerships, diversity, and service-learning as a professional experience. Hands-on experience will highlight the significance and fundamental characteristics of service-learning while also outlining specific areas of focus for each course.

SLR 111: Service-Learning Practicum (1 credit)
